

The Accidental Plagiarist

Berenstein, L. (2003, January 27). Healthy or not, the hookah habit is hot. Time, 161(4), 10.

For centuries, men in the Middle East have gathered around hookahs to puff fruit-scented smoke, talk and pass the time. In the West, however, the water pipe became synonymous with drug culture in the 1960s, an association that lingers. But in the past couple of years, the hookah has been resurrected in youth-oriented coffeehouses, restaurants and bars, supplanting the cigar as the tobacco fad of the moment.

Taylor's use of the passage in her paragraph:

Berenstein claims that for centuries men in the Middle East have gathered “around hookahs to puff fruit-scented smoke, talk and pass the time.” On the Western front, the hookah was parallel with drug culture in the 1960s, a comparison that still remains. More recently, the hookah has become a fad again in hip “coffeehouses, restaurants and bars” (Berenstein, 2003).
